North Carolina

Greensboro, NC – A Greensboro woman was sentenced to 44 months of imprisonment and three years of supervised release in connection with a scheme to submit claims for fraudulent urine drug testing screens to Medicaid, announced Clifton T. Barrett, United States Attorney for the Middle District of North Carolina (MDNC).

Jasmine Hoyle, 35, pled guilty to one count of health care fraud and one count of money laundering on April 9, 2025. In addition to prison time and supervised release, the court also ordered Hoyle to pay restitution totaling $6,299,738.89.

According to court documents, Hoyle owned and operated two businesses located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina: Harvest Focused & Consulting Services, LLC and The Ultimate Sacrifice. Both of these businesses billed Medicaid for services that were not performed, including significant quantities of urine drug tests. For example, on 97 occasions between August 2020 and July 2022, Harvest Focused submitted claims to Medicaid for urine drug tests for a Medicaid beneficiary who had never heard of Harvest Focused or The Ultimate Sacrifice, never received services from those companies, and did not provide any urine for urine drug testing.

Over the course of the scheme, Medicaid reimbursed Harvest Focused and The Ultimate Sacrifice over $6 million. Hoyle used the fraudulently proceeds on personal expenses, including the purchase a Dodge Challenger.

"Stealing taxpayer dollars from a program that enables our most vulnerable citizens to access health care is reprehensible," said U.S. Attorney Barrett. "The U.S. Attorney's Office is committed to supporting investigation and prosecution of Medicaid fraud. We thank the federal and state agencies that partner in this effort."

"Health care providers that fraudulently bill Medicaid for services not provided divert valuable taxpayer funds intended for some of the most vulnerable populations," said Special Agent in Charge Kelly J. Blackmon with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Office of Inspector General. "OIG will continue to work with our law enforcement partners to protect the integrity of Medicaid and other federally funded health care programs."

"Taxpayer's money allocated to the Medicaid budget is used to provide healthcare services to our vulnerable populations," said Special Agent-In-Charge Donald "Trey" Eakins, IRS-CI Charlotte Field Office. "IRS Criminal Investigation special agents, together with our partners at the U.S. Attorney's Office will identify, investigate, and prosecute those who enrich themselves by stealing from the federal government and subsequently the taxpayers."

"This case is a great example of a successful joint investigation, where we followed the financial footprint of the defendant to uncover evidence and bring them to justice. The resulting prison sentence sends a strong message that we will continue to aggressively pursue and investigate those who engage in fraudulent schemes," said Acting U.S. Postal Inspector in Charge J. "Buck" Buckley, of the Atlanta Division.

Hoyle's former business partner, LaTameria Davis, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to defraud the United States on July 8, 2025. Davis's sentencing is scheduled to take place on September 26, 2025, at 9:30 a.m. in Greensboro, North Carolina. Davis faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison, a period of supervised release of up to three years, and monetary penalties.

The Internal Revenue Service – Criminal Investigation Division, North Carolina Attorney General's Office, Medicaid Investigations Division, Department of Health and Human Services – Office of Inspector General, and the United States Postal Inspection Service are investigating the case, and it is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Ashley Waid and Special Assistant United States Attorney Daniel Spillman.
